Our Story

"The County Bounty began as a farm in 2016, just outside of Picton in Prince Edward County, growing organic vegetables. At the end of my second season of farming, a friend gave me a large flat of strawberries that was about to spoil, thinking that since I'm a farmer, I must be into canning. Many farmers branch out into jams and preserves to be able to stretch out their produce over the winter months, but I did not have the passion or skill to preserve it that way. Instead, I searched online for other ways to save these strawberries. Luckily, I came across a recipe for cordials (the syrup you'd add to fizzy water) and began to experiment with all sorts of weird and wonderful local flavours. I started to bring the unique combinations to market and they were so well received that I decided to take it to the next level and pursue bottled soda. In 2018 I launched the sodas as a farm value-added product and it caught on like wild-fire! I have now switched gears to making soda full time, but I have not forgotten my farming roots and continue to support my fellow local farmers by sourcing as much Ontario-grown produce as possible." - Dodie Ellenbogen, CEO.
